

Global Mapping of Organizations and Experts Working on Gender and Migration

Women in Migration Network (WIMN) is partnering with Friedrich Ebert Stiftung (FES) to map organizations and experts addressing the intersection of gender and migration through research, advocacy and mobilization.

There is a need to identify key organizations and leaders addressing the rights of women in migration at the local, national, regional and global levels, including allies within other sectors (such as labor, climate change, women's rights, LGBTQ rights) with whom to build cross-sectoral alliances. We are also aiming to assess how these organizations are responding to the current Covid-19 and ask them how the lives of women in migration are being impacted by the pandemic.

This project will map organizations and experts by region (divided into the Americas; Europe; Africa- MENA, Asia and the Pacific) laying the basis for future regional and global organizing within the context of migration governance, women's rights movement, labor organizing and in other relevant sites of intervention.

After a first phase of identification of organizations and experts addressing women in migration, a survey will be distributed to them in order to assess their practical and strategic needs and priorities. Finally, drawing from the results of the survey and a series of in-depth interviews with key regional stakeholders, the project will produce a report on regional trends and actors on gender and migration.

Sincere thanks for your collaboration on this endeavor,

Women in Migration Network (WIMN)

www.womeninmigration.org

If you have any further questions about this project, please contact project coordinator Paola Cymment pcyment@womeninmigration.org